

KUZA-AFYA programme

Kuza Afya is a diabetes and hypertension care programme designed to work with communities and healthcare workers through comprehensive education, screening and care. It was unveiled in January 2019 and rolled out in Bungoma County, Western Kenya until December 2019. During this period, over 70,000 community members were screened for hypertension and 40,000 for diabetes.

OVER 70,000

community members were screened for hypertension

OVER 40,000

community members were screened for diabetes

OVER 5,000

new patients accessing care for the hypertension and diabetes routinely

500 community health workers and

57

nurses and clinical officers trained

TIBA-YAKO programme

Tiba Yako is a digital service model for diabetes and hypertension care mainly in Nairobi. The programme was rolled out last year by Boehringer Ingelheim in partnership with Pharm Access mainly targeting people living in slum areas and other informal settlements in Nairobi. Through this programme, patients have access to a mobile health wallet with which they can save for healthcare expenses and acquire discounted prices for treatment of their chronic disease.

PROGRAM ENROLMENT

7

clinics were selected

1435

patients enrolled

ADHERENCE

48%

current patient adherence

620

patients used the digital app for home blood pressure and glucose levels monitoring